

Building Tune-Up Program Application

As part of its continuing energy efficiency efforts, Austin Energy's Commercial Energy Management Services (CEMS) offers a Building Tune-Up Program (BTUP) to its commercial and industrial customers, or their building owners. The goal of the Building Tune-Up Program is to reduce summer peak kW demand and annual kWh energy use by improving the efficiency of energy-using systems and the effectiveness of maintenance practices. Austin Energy's CEMS and the Texas A&M Energy Systems Laboratory (TEES) have teamed up to provide Continuous Commissioning® services to Austin Energy's customers.

As part of the application process please provide copies of the following information:

- A copy of an executed CEMS Participation Request Form that resulted in BTU program participation and the TEES lead Initial Assessment.
- A copy of the completed Initial Assessment Report completed by TEES.
- A copy of the executed agreement between TEES and Participants to implement Continuous Commissioning® recommendations identified in the Initial Assessment Report.
- A completed Building Tune-up Application

In addition to providing BTUP services, Austin Energy will offer implementation incentives based on the peak demand reduction projected and meeting all current Commercial Energy Management Services rebate guidelines. The incentive will reduce the implementation costs to the building owner and, consequently, shorten the simple payback for the implemented building tune-up recommendations.
